

Designing Your Life

Somewhere along my life I stopped subscribing to the belief system that I don't have enough time, I'm too old/young, etc. I can't tell you when it happened, only that it happened. What I know for sure is that I know that when it happened my life changed. I intentionally made a decision to subscribe to a higher system of belief. One that says I have more than enough time, I'm never too old/young and I can do all things.

I realize that somewhere along the way of life, I had allowed myself to subscribe in part to someone else's belief system. I believe they had the best intentions for me, I think. Someone else's belief system can only be high enough for you when you choose to make it high enough. It doesn't matter who that someone else is; it can be society, your group, your family or any other thing you subscribe too. The wonderful thing about life is that you GET to choose to subscribe or not subscribe to any thinking you choose. You can awaken to embrace it anywhere along the way. I've made a choice to seek for a higher system of thinking and being. A system designed to catapult me to a place of power, beyond human understanding.

A place where I now realize I was born to live. Not just at this moment but at every moment of my life. This system is not built on intellect, which was part of the problem with the first system. I didn't fit me because my intellect was not high enough. I didn't go to the right schools. My family didn't have the right last name. I didn't grow up with....., etc.

The belief system I subscribe to tells me that my faith in God is the equalizer. In life I have learned that the least (or greatest in this case) common denominator is always the place of equalizing. In the kingdom of God we are all equal. So regardless of who my parents are, how much money or where I didn't go to college, I am equal to any task, I am above and not beneath, I am the head and not the tail, I am a lender and not a borrower.

These statements are not mere words but they are the character of those who live in the system of faith in God. This system requires is that you BELIEVE.

I'm designing my life according to its original plan. How are you designing your life?